The Irish Brewers Association 'Irish Beer 2013' report highlights the important role played by the brewing sector in the Irish economy. It is a sector which has continued to show its resilience despite extremely difficult trading conditions in the last 12 months.

The last two years has seen beer duty increase by a staggering 42%. In this time Government has added 28 cent to the price of a pint through duty and VAT increases. These increases have inevitably led to a contraction in consumption levels and as a result production has fallen slightly to meet these new demand levels.

Despite the difficult environment IBA members have continued to invest in their businesses in 2013 and overall employment is up, driven mainly by increases in exports levels which have offset domestic market contraction somewhat. The sector continues to make a huge contribution to the Irish economy both directly and indirectly with beer excise receipts valued at €358 million in 2013.

Beer remains the nation's favourite drink and with encouraging signs of beer renaissance emerging through increasing numbers of breweries in operation, the Government must now support this sector of the economy by reducing the excise burden and allowing these emerging breweries to achieve their huge potential.
